The Men's Shed Will Be:-

A friendly meeting place for men in Oxford and the surrounding district.

A place for men to carry out practical projects for themselves and the community.

A practical environment for men to talk about health issues.

A facility for the disabled and senior citizens to meet and work with guidance from tradesmen.

A place that encourages programmes for father and sons.

A place that offers the youth of the area the opportunity to experience trades which may lead to future employment of personal skills.

Times the Shed is open:

Tuesdays Between 7 and 9pm

Thursdays Between 10am and 12.30pm

Thursdays Between 7 and 9pm

Who Can Join?

• What are the benefits?

The Men's Shed is a fully equipped workshop where skilled or unskilled people can spend time with each other and work together. It's a place where it's not all work. This is a place where you can just hang out.

By working with others you can learn new skills or polish up on old ones. You can fix an automobile or motorbike, make a book shelf or learn the simple art of wood turning.

The use of the tools provided is taken care of in your membership fee. Materials however are charges for at cost to trade price, or you can provide your own.

The shed does not take fee paying work away from trade professionals but there is no problem with making your own projects of perhaps making toys for hospitals, pre-schools or underprivileged children.

You may from time to time be asked to assist in making something for a community project or charity and hopefully you will enjoy doing this sort of gifting to your community.

If you have never used power tools or tools of any description do not worry, there are always supervisors in attendance to assist and train you.

The Shed is a positive place and the object of the exercise is to make sure that you feel fulfilled and just a bit proud of yourself when you see the results of your work.

You will always be welcome at the

The Men's Shed Story

Many retired people, sickness beneficiaries or unemployed men have either downsized their homes and so have lost their workshop and wish to spend sometime with others in the community.

From this background the concept of the men's shed was born. Here people can come and use a fantastic variety of tools and equipment to pursue their skill or interests and are able to do this in the company of others who are like minded.

They can also learn new skills, be guided when using tools for the first time or demonstrate their life long trade to young adults and fellow members.

In the shed men once more feel viable by contributing to community needs and create projects of personal interest.

Reports tell us that good health is based on many factors which involve self-esteem, feeling productive and needed. Being valuable to the society and having strong relationships with others builds a personal confidence.

The McIver's Oxford Community Men's Shed will meet these needs and provide a space for those in need of a place to go to in the day that is positive and productive. It encourages new social activities and friendships as well as providing access to networks including local activities and men's health information.
